

Chaque seconde, un service

Mandalay, Myanmar, 21.12.2012

Il y a 25 ans, jour pour jour, j'ai décidé de devenir constructeur de ponts pour les pauvres. Après 7 semaines d'études à l'Ecole Polytechnique Fédérale à Zürich, j'ai démissionné. Le cœur et la raison ont surmonté la peur d'un futur incertain. Etudes universitaires, amis, sports, lumières de la Bahnhofstrasse à Zürich avec les vitrines des magasins pleins des luxueux cadeaux de Noël - tout cela ne pouvait réduire au silence l'appel insistant venu du plus profond. Au contraire : cela accentuait le contraste avec les souvenirs des 6 mois vécus dans la zone du volcan Reventador en Equateur, sinistrée par un tremblement de terre.

Je rejoignais mon village Pontresina, dans les montagnes couvertes de neige, pour dire au revoir à mes parents. Ma décision était prise : je retournerai dans la jungle équatorienne et de toutes mes forces je chercherai mon propre chemin.

25 ans plus tard

Jusqu'à aujourd'hui, nous avons construit 607 ponts suspendus au service de 1,7 million de paysans pauvres, en utilisant des tuyaux et des câbles que l'on nous a donnés et que nous recyclons. Je n'ai pas de terme exact pour définir ce que nous faisons. Car nous ne sommes ni une ONG, ni une entreprise, nous ne faisons pas de politique ni de prosélytisme religieux, nous n'avons pas de bureau, de maison, de fanion, ni de compte Facebook. Et néanmoins les amitiés et les ponts se nouent comme un fil mythique tout au long de cette odyssée.

Il y a deux semaines, Walter Yáñez, mon collègue équatorien depuis 21 ans, a érigé le pont no 600. Sans le savoir. Et sans non plus que nous le célébrions.

A 2 h de l'après-midi il a donc terminé un beau pont de 93m à Matamba sur le rio Quinindé entre les provinces de Manabí et d'Esmeraldas. Le même jour, 12 heures plus tôt suite au décalage horaire, nous avons achevé le pont no 599 à Ngerayung, dans les environs de Trenggalek, Province de Jawa Timur, Indonésie. Et à peine 10 heures après celui de Walter nous avons achevé le pont no 601 et les 4 jours suivants, 4 autres ponts. Ce fut une série de 8 ponts, montés en 8 jours.

Et ça fonctionne

Il y a un mois au Vietnam les autorités locales des 58 ponts suspendus montés dans le delta du Mékong ont fait une chose exceptionnelle: pendant 2 jours - un pendant la semaine et un autre le week-end -, du lever jusqu'au coucher du soleil, ils ont fait le décompte des passages à pied, à bicyclette, à moto, en chaise roulante. 38'126 personnes traversaient les ponts par jour. Plus de la moitié étaient des écoliers, les autres allaient au travail, au marché, dans les hôpitaux, dans les administrations publiques. Cela signifie que chaque année, 13,9 millions de personnes passent sur ces ponts au Vietnam.

Je n'ai pas encore de tels décomptes pour les autres ponts en Asie (Cambodge, Laos, Myanmar, Indonésie) ni non plus en Equateur ou dans les autres pays latino-américains. Néanmoins, en se basant sur les chiffres du Vietnam, nous pouvons prudemment avancer que l'ensemble de 607 ponts construits par les paysans a rendu possible 48 millions de passages sans difficultés ni souffrances durant l'année 2012. A titre de comparaison, l'aéroport international de Bangkok a enregistré 48 millions de passagers en 2011. Et en ce qui concerne les ponts, ne sont pas comptabilisée les traversées de nuit.

Ainsi chaque seconde au moins une personne passe sur ces ponts construits par amour. Le même sentiment qui m'a soutenu pendant ces 25 ans, et auquel j'ai donné ma vie. Car pour moi le plus important, c'est d'investir le temps qui m'est donné à réduire la souffrance chez autrui. Et ça fonctionne.

Aujourd'hui, à chaque seconde nous rendons un service à autrui, à chaque seconde, une souffrance est épargnée à un être humain. Ou au moins une peine. Chaque. Seconde. Deux mots lus, deux secondes passées, deux êtres humains secourus.

P.S. : En attaché, les images de la plupart des 607 ponts. Les premières années nous prenions rarement des photos.
